CULTIVATION OF PICNIC FRUIT,

And flow Florida Imagines She'll be Full of Millionaire Growers.

A correspondent tells some stories about lemon culture in that State where De Leon vainly thought he'd found the fountain of perpetual youth. Five thousand lemons to a tree, and many of them weighing a pound each, would aggregate about two tons, to say the least. But the every is written, and it may as well "go."

ICORRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCHA TAMPA, FLA., November 23 .- American oranges have revolutionized the orange business in America. The Florida lemon bids fair to follow its sister and gain a supremacy over the old-time, far-famed Sicily fruit. The cultivation of Florida, California and Louisiana oranges has attained such dimensions in our country that it is becoming a matter of certainty that Mediterranean fruit will altogether cease to be imported to the United States. The culture of the lemon is yet in its intancy in Florida; but "it is Florida that threatens to oust the Mediterranean islands from their

Southern Florida, and the fruit attains a size unprecedented in other parts of the world where climatic conditions are less fa-

Lemons weighing a pound each are common, and along the banks of the Caloosahatchie, in the fertile district of the "reclaimed lands," a single tree bears 5,000 lemons, many of which weigh a pound each. But, like the "big trees" of California, the story calls for a challenge often, and the incredulous tourist, who suspects a Florida yarn, must come, tape measure and scales in hand, see, measure and weigh for himself. THEY WANT POOR SOIL.

But further, while the trees in this region are magnificent, the fruit is not marketable, being coarse-grained and thin-skinned-the result of its exuberant growth in a too fertile soil-and lemon culture, therefore, is half the time of the orange, and are fully as prolific, the man who prospects in lemon oulture has every assurance of success.

One cannot but feel for the Sicilian growers, who have enjoyed a monopoly of this Mediterranean industry, which is as old as civilization itself. Lemon groves in a highly-developed state are worth $1,000 per acre, and, as the value of a grove increases with age, so the man who will train up a tree in the way it should grow, may feel

Each year tropical fruit growing as a business is getting on a firmer basis. It is said that the United States consume more emons in a year than all the other countries combined, and the consumption is increasing greatly every year. As shown from statistics, the number of boxes imported in 1850 amounted to 119,000, while last year the number had increased to more than 2,000,000. When there is such a demand for the truit, its production on a larger scale must ultimately follow.

LESS AND LESS A RARITY. To many the possession of a grove in Florida has been a matter of luxury, like the ownership of a painting or celebrated racer; but materialistic, money-making Americans are beginning to see that the growing of citrus fruits must be treated as a business and less as a matter of sentiment, and the progressive Yankee who has business tact enough to watch his grove in every state, from the bud in its intancy to the sale of the fruit, has secured a business that possesses a inscination in itself us well as there, no one knows, although many theories are advanced. They may have been propagated by seeds dropped by the Spaniards. The missionaries of the cross, who accompanied all the early Spanish expeditions to America, were accustomed to bring with mens certainly 80 years old exist in the State, and show no signs of dying yet. Seeing is believing, and the doubter must satisfy himself, by trial, like the man of Hierocles' day, who, on hearing that ravens lived to be 200 years old, immediately bought himself one to prove it.

A PROLIFIC BEARES. The lemon usually produces two crops of fruit annually—the first ripening during the summer, and the second in November and December. There are scattering lemons during the entire year, but not enough to be of any great shipping value. There is much to learn in all that pertains to the culture of the lemon in Florida; but that it will prove more profitable than the orange is not doubted by the horticultural and pomological societies of the State.

One of the largest fruit dealers in New York says: "The best lemons we get are those from Florida, because they are naturally splendid lemons, because they are allowed to ripen on the trees, and the distance is so short, they arrive in splendid condi-tion." Florida can out run Italy if she takes care in growing, sorting and packing, and sends to New York the best lemons. A prominent truit grower of Orange county, a few years ago, budded from a variety of Sicily lemon. Last winter he shipped 3,-000,000 lemons. The fruit picked, after it matured, commanded a dollar a box in advance of the finest imported lemons in the market.

The Orange Trust is the absorbing theme in Florida this fall. Slow transportation, high commission fees and rushing sour and immature fruit into the markets have had a tendency to weaken the inductry, especially among small producers. The season natur-all opens with a rush, which paralyzes ... kets and demoralizes growers; but, with the trust completed, with an unprecedented crop in prospect, the orange and lemon business will this year be unparfileled. The North, too, will feel the bene-fit, for prices will not be so variable, and fruit will arrive in better condition. The development of the industry, and more lemons for less money, will surely, too, break the awful solitude of the lemon in the viewie lemonade.

A HANGMAN'S GALLOWS AT AUCTION. Strange Scene in a Virginia Town-Sold at

Last for 83 75. CHESTERFIELD COURT HOUSE, VA., November 28 .- The novel spectacle of selling a gallows at auction was witnessed here. The gallows was for the hanging of Simon Walker, a colored youth, who had been under sentence of death for some months and who was about to be hung, when Governor Lee rode over and, after interviewing the boy, decided to commute his sentence.

A large crowd gathered around the gallows. Auctioneer Joe Brown stood at the deadly trap door and cried:

"What am I offered, gentlemen, for this gallows; bran new and never used?"

A long pause ensued.
"Start it at anything," said the auctioneer. An old countryman bid $1.
"Going at $1, $1 bran new gallows, never used, $1," cried the auctioneer.

"Gentlemen, this is a dead give away, a bran new gallows for $1."

This caused a colored man to bid $1 50, but being told that whoever handled a gal-lows would see the shadow of the gallows over him whenever a rooster crowed at night, he withdrew his bid.

sight, he withdrew his bid.

Sheriff Gill bid $2. A blacksmith bid $2.50. From this figure it went 10 cents at a time up to $3.75, and was bought at that figure by Sheriff Gill. He bought it on speculation. It was considered the best gallows in the State.

IT WAS ENTIRELY UNSEAWORTHY. Not Much Wonder That the German Bark Went to the Bottom.

A CRACKER MAN'S LUCK.

He Has to Get a Dray to Carry Home His

Thanksgiving Winnings. BALTIMORE, November 28 .- Seven men were in Tommy O'Brien's large restaurant Monday night throwing dice, and among them was the proprietor. Another was young Mason, of the well-known cracker best adapted to poorer soil; but, as thin soil is always found cheaper, it will be seen that the cost of laying out a grove of lemons is slight, and as lemons come into bearing in the left that impossible to stop loser. O'Brien. O'Brien finally ran out of ready cash, and, being unwilling to stop loser, began to put up his Thanksgiving supply of turkeys, canes and umbrellas which he had laid in for the holidays.

The cracker man's luck showed no signs of waning, and at last a beautiful music box, worth $600, was thrown for and the cracker man won. Then cases of champagne were staked against $30 in cold cash, and tree in the way it should grow, may feel that in after years he may sit under the shade of it and talk of "corners" in Florida lemons.

A BENEFICENT SCHEME.

Gusky's Give 600 Turkeys to the Poor of Pittsbarg. Practical benevolence is always more ommendable than theoretical benevolence, and the plan of Mrs. Gusky is far more productive of good results than the moralizing upon poverty and admissions that some-thing ought to be done to alleviate distress. Six hundred turkeys were given to the poor of Pittsburg yesterday morning, and several thousand hungry persons, large and small, were thereby given a chance to feast. The custom of Gusky's has been an an-nual observance, and its success has been so marked that it was small wonder that the vicinity of the store was thronged at an early hour by deserving poor anxious to avail themselves of the generosity of the donor. Before 8 A. M. the vestibules of the store and the streets leading to it were crowded with a throng of people all eager to get their turkey in time for dinner. Six hundred tur-has been cultivated to some extent since the carly history of the State. All through Florida the wild groves of citrus fruits are found amid dense forests. How they came

The work to-day was under the immediate supervision of Messrs. K. Solomon, Levi De Wolf, and at 8 o'clock the doors were opened and the crowds flocked in. All ages and conditions were repre-sented, from the 5-year-old little girl who got the biggest turkey and had to be helped to carry it to the poor lone woman of 85, who had only herself to keep. There were several families that numbered 16 persons. them and plant whatever would be useful in a new country where they established their missions. Doubtless to these worthy fathers we owe the first cultivation of the lemon and crange.

The wild native lemon has a brilliant orange-colored fruit, very large and roughstinned, and with a rind nearly a quarter of an inch thick. Its juice is rather sweetish in taste, but it has no value, except as a stock for other varieties. The lemon, like the orange, lives to be a centenarian. Specimens certainly 80 years old exist in the family was six. The largest number in any one family was 19, and the applicant received the largest turkey.

A BANK CONSPIRACY.

The Big Robbery at Hurley Was the Result of a Plot-Startling Discoveries Made by the Detectives. MILWAUKEE, November 28 .- Dr. J. C. Reynolds, President of the bank at Hurley, where the $40,000 robbery took place, says that the most astonishing feature of the new developments in the case is the claim made by detectives that the robbery is the result of a conspiracy which was going on for at least eight months.

"For two years," President Reynolds says, "it has been a matter of common knowledge on the range that a large amount of money was sent us once a month to pay off miners. The officers claim to have information from one of the gang who came to Hurley last March fully equipped to rob the bank and knowing the combination of the safe. This fellow claims to have hung around several days, and to have seen the money arrive and go to the bank. That night he and his confederates were ready, but the cashier did not go down town. They watched him prepare for bed, and then decided to abandon an attempt at robbery. The leader said that he knew that, with the cashier in the bank, robbery would probably include murder, and he drew the line at the latter crime. latter crime.

"The officers say that this gang did not finally commit the robbery, and the leader does not know who did, but he will tell who furnished him with the combination of the furnished him with the combination of the safe when he expected to track it. The officers have given me various other impor-tant pieces of information which show a deep-laid plot, and I shudder when I think of the danger that my brother, the cashier, has been in for nearly a year. Under the circumstances, the robbery might have meant ruin to the bank."

Constitutional Catarrh.

No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastened the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind—one or more, and sometimes all, yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force and breaks up the most robust of constitutions, ignored, because but little understood, by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and chariatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his Radical Cuze has won the hearty approval of thousands. It is instantapreparation of his RADICAL CURE has won the hearty approval of thousands. and otherwise the weather was anything but favorable for the sale of winter goods-Fur Caps in particular. What are we to do under the circumstances? Don't fret; our mind is clear on that score. We'll not sit down and watch and wait for the cold weather to come. We don't believe in leaving 'our capital tied up for an indefinite period in Fur Caps. We're too lively-too active for that. Our only salvation lies in selling them-and sell them we will. Now then, in order to counteract
